

District lines decision due Friday

Franciewicz: Interim terms for legislators is a bad idea

BY TRACI BONNEY
A panel of federal judges in Jackson said Tuesday they expect to have new state House and Senate districts settled by Friday.

This promise came after the three-judge panel was appointed to redraw 122 House and 52 Senate districts because state lawmakers were not able to come up with plans that satisfied all groups involved.

The House and Senate passed plans in accordance to federal law, which mandates the district lines be moved after each decade's census to accommodate population shifts.

One of the House's plans would have carved a new district out of part of northern Hancock County and portions of neighboring counties. That district, which has already attracted qualifiers for the September 17 party primaries and November 5 general elections, may be erased as the federal panel redraws the lines.

The dispute over the districts has been one of politics and voting power. Legislators spent several months near the end of the regular session hammering out differences in their beliefs as to how the districts should go.

The senators and representatives finally settled on plans that satisfied most of them, but black leaders in the state filed suit against the plans, claiming those proposals did not allow adequate black voting strength.

The federal panel also said they may allow state legislators to run for one-year terms this year in the Senate and House districts established in 1982, then run next year for three-year terms in permanent districts.

Interim terms for state legislators is not a good idea, according to Senator Vic Franciewicz.

In a brief interview Wednesday, Franciewicz said of the one-year term concept, "It would be disastrous. It would mean two elections instead of one, which would cost about $2 million statewide."

"In addition, it would disrupt the normal legislative process. As it is, legislators are thinking about elections. If one-year terms were used, the representatives and senators would be thinking about elections again next year, and very little would be accomplished."

"Right now, we get three productive years out of the state legislature. If these one-year terms are allowed, we'll lose another year of productivity."

Redistricting effect on county unknown

BY TRACI BONNEY

The current legislative redistricting dispute has left questions in the minds of some county election officials. Circuit Clerk Pamela Metzler, who must compile the ballots for the upcoming primaries and fall general elections, said her main problem will be with the absentee ballots.

"The parties will be handling their primaries, so that won't affect me too much. But putting the (House and Senate) district numbers on the ballots will be a problem."

"Absentee ballots especially will be affected. If we send out ballots now without putting the (House and Senate) seats on them while this thing isn't settled, then the matter gets settled later, that can cause problems."

Metzler added that she isn't certain that there will be any effect at all on the ballots. "This is just speculation right now. Voter registration deadline is August 16, and we'll probably start sending out absentee ballots August 19, so we have about three weeks before it starts getting serious."

A new home for Waveland's St. Vincent de Paul Society

BY JACQUI COCHRAN

Waveland's St. Vincent de Paul Society is to move into its new home at 307 Coleman Avenue this coming week.

After three months of feeling like the displaced housewife, St. Vincent de Paul will reopen its thrift store in two newly renovated rooms of the City Hall Annex Building.

The Society was asked to leave the Waveland Civic Center on May 1 so that renovations to the center might begin. The center was the Society's home since its concept eight years ago.

According to Marie Braselman, one of the Society's diligent volunteers, the two new rooms will serve the purposes of the Society more efficiently than ever in the past.

The Society's new location will include an office area, approximately 12x18-feet to be used for consulting work and a spacious 38x12-foot room where the merchandise of the thrift store can be displayed for purchase.

The two rooms will complete occupancy for the bottom floor of the annex building on Coleman Avenue with the Board of Aldermen's meeting room to the left of the Society's rooms and the City Building Inspector's offices to its right.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society was begun in Waveland when a few people recognized a need to help the poor in the community. Society vice-president John Daspit stated.

Today, the Society contributes up to $78,000 a year to the people of Hancock County during times of emergency.

It operates on combined resources from the federal gov-

School board accepts field house bid

BY TRACI BONNEY

An athletic field house at Bay High School is one step closer to reality.

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board held a special meeting Monday to issue short-term notes for capital improvements and to approve bids for those improvements. After approving notes for $115,000 at 8.1 percent interest with Merchants Bank, the board accepted the bid of J.W. Puckett Co. of $26,238 for the field house.

Other bids accepted included one of $52,165 from Bond Paving for various asphalt projects at schools in the district; and bids totaling $12,623 from Broodmoor Carpet and Lino-leum of New Orleans for a number of carpeting and flooring projects.

The Broodmoor bids were accepted 4-1, with Charles Benvenuti opposing them. He

Bay gambling study workshop set for today at Civic Center

BY TRACI BONNEY

A number of local residents and business owners will meet with Bay St. Louis feasibility/zoning study consultants tonight to discuss gaming issues, according to city zoning project manager Jules Lagarde.

The meeting will start at 7 p.m. at the county Civic Center on Longfellow Drive. Lagarde said the public is invited to attend.

"Paul Buckhurst will present the consultants' findings thus far, and Hawkins Stearn will give a forecast of the number of visitors expected in Bay St. Louis, based on several different scenarios."

"After the presentations, Mr. Buckhurst will give the groups a set of questions to discuss. The groups will work on the questions for about an hour, then will give their reports to the consultants."

Lagarde said the workshop will include six to eight groups of eight or nine people.

Participants in the workshop will include registered voters, members of community organizations, and business and civic leaders.

Lagarde and the consultants will be present as "participating observers," while Mayor Edward Favre and the city council will be considered "disinterested observers" (they will watch and listen, but not actively participate).

The consultants will take the information gathered at the workshop and begin to form three plans concerning the future of dockside gambling in Bay St. Louis, Lagarde said.

While in Bay St. Louis, the consultants also plan to meet with various groups and inspect potential gambling facility sites, he added.

Hancock hospitality

Chamber seminar focuses on enhancing image

By T. H. (Doc) Toups
The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce sponsored a seminar at the Hancock County Civic Center Thursday evening titled "Hospitality—From The Inside Out." The seminar was presented by Terry Winstead of Success Systems Unlimited of Madison, Miss.

Basil Kennedy, chamber president, explained, "One of the reasons we are doing this is to kick off a program we call 'Hancock Hospitality.'"

Its purpose is to assist the local business community in developing an atmosphere of friendliness and receptiveness to tourists and other business clientele.

During his presentation Winstead helped the audience dissect the concept of hospitality into its basic components.

He repeatedly stressed the idea that hospitality is as much attitude as anything else, and with participant input developed a chart listing perceived obstacles.

Some of those mentioned included: approaching problems from too many different directions, resentment towards "outsiders," and difficulties adjusting to rapid change.

Due to a smaller than expected audience, the presentation assumed something of the nature of an informal discussion group, and attendees pulled their chairs into a circle to trade ideas and suggestions.

At one point, Winstead explained that after defining goals, one must think of them in positive terms rather than unattainable aspirations.

He suggested that many Mississippians have a negative self-image due to the way the state has been unfavorably portrayed by the national media.

"People have been told for so long that we live in a nowhere state, that they have begun to visualize this," he said.

He jokingly added, "Maybe we should all become big liars and say that Mississippi is first in everything!"

He explained, "When people have a positive self-image and feel good about themselves, they naturally tend to be more hospitable to others."

The chamber of commerce is actively seeking greater community involvement and welcomes calls from interested parties, especially newcomers, needing area information. The number is 467-9048.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Saturday will be the day many boys and girls have been waiting for. It will be the day of the annual Gulf Coast Sportsman Club's Kids Fishing Rodeo.

I would like to remind the youngsters that they, just like the adults, have to obey the size limits on speckled trout and redfish. Rodeo officials say they will not accept any undersized fish, period.

The fishing rodeo is free to boys and girls ages 13 and under. There will be a special crab division for ages six and under.

There will also be a saltwater and a freshwater division.

This will be the seventh rodeo by the Sportsman Club's members, and they are hoping for a record number of participants.

Sam Perniciaro Jr. is president of the club, and Shor-ty Carl is the rodeo's chairman. Registration will continue until 2 p.m. on rodeo day. The scales will close at 5 p.m.

Registrants who do not catch a fish stand a good chance of winning a prize as there will be drawings while the winners are announced in each category.

Many of the prizes are donated by local merchants. I hope to see you at the rodeo on Saturday.

While on the subject of fish, folks do not want to forget the big fish fry benefit Saturday night at the Hancock County Civic Center.

The fish fry will be from 4 to 8 p.m. and is sponsored by the Krewe of Nereids, the ladies organization which has been bringing us a Mardi Gras parade every year for more than 25 years.

Catfish will be on the menu which is one of my favorite fish.

There will be a donation of $5 per person for the fish fry, which also includes coleslaw and hush puppies. Following the fish fry there will be an evening of entertainment at $10 per person, and you may want to boogie to the sounds of the talented Pat Murphy Band. Sounds like it will be a night of fun.

WASHINGTON REPORT

Cochran stresses need for in-home services

U.S. Senator Thad Cochran says the Older Americans Act approved by a Senate panel Wednesday provides important services that make a difference in the lives of the nation's elderly.

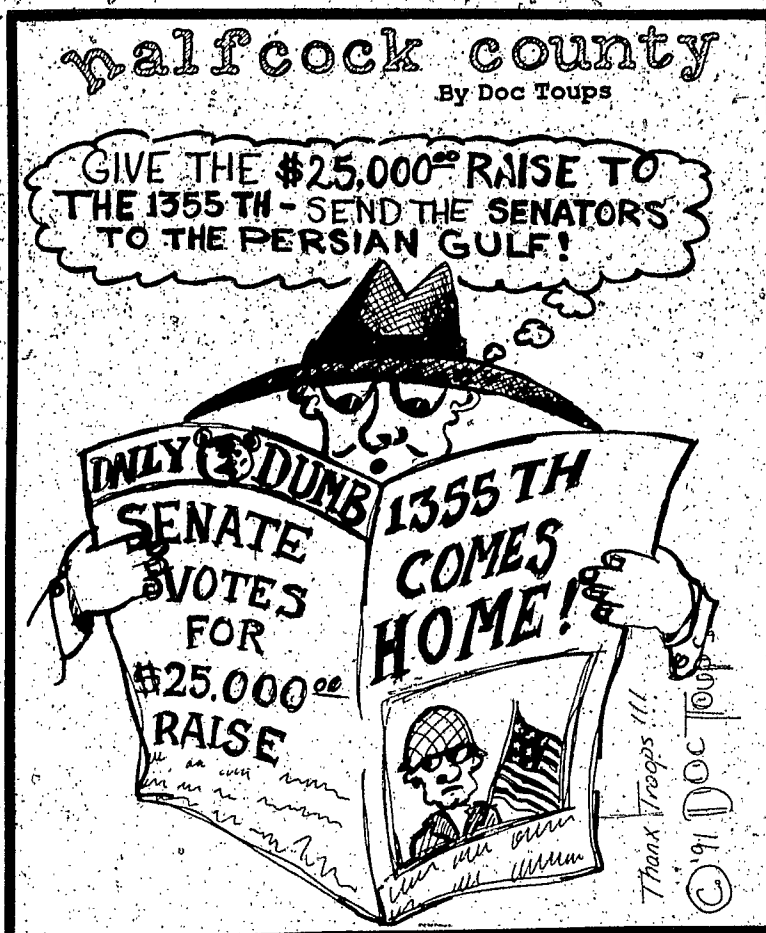

"As older Americans continue to increase as a percentage of the general population, more and more families are facing the reality of providing long-term care for older family members," Cochran said.

Under an amendment offered by Senator Cochran, the bill will authorize more funding for the delivery of in-home services. This will include assistance to those who provide care to older family members in their homes, he said.

Cochran, who chaired subcommittee hearings in Mississippi on home health care, said he was persuaded by testimony from health care professionals and caregivers that there is a growing need for more home-health services.

"Testimony received in those hearings brought into focus the need to better target the resources of the Act to those who are most in need," he said.

The Older Americans Act, which will expire at the end of this year, provides a wide range of health care, nutrition services and legal aid for millions of Americans over age 60. The bill to reauthorize the Act for the next four years must now be considered by the full Senate.

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

National Demo leader impressed with Mississippi

Ron Brown, of Washington, D.C., the first black chairman of the Democratic National Committee, is a very prudent fellow.

When Brown was visiting Mississippi Democrats here the other day, he was the overnight guest of Gov. and Mrs. Ray Mabus at the Governor's Mansion.

The question came up of where he would sleep in the historic old house of governors. Brown was offered the chance to spend the night in what is known in mansion lore as "Bilbo's bed," so named for Gov. (and later Senator) Theodore G. Bilbo, the notorious racial demagogue of the 30s and 40s.

A black man sleeping in Bilbo's bed? Brown pondered. Nope, he'd rather not, he told his hosts. "I could see old Bilbo turning over in his grave," Brown confided later, "and I just didn't want to do that."

Brown, who turns 50 this week, was on his second swing into Mississippi in two years, having first ventured here in February, 1989 in what was considered an important ice-breaker in the South right after it became known he would head the National Democratic committee.

This time, Brown came bearing gifts: a check for $20,000 made out to the money-strapped Mississippi Democratic Party. It was, he said, a token to "demonstrate the national party's commitment" to Mississippi Democrats.

His mission coming here, after stopping off in Alabama, was calculated to dispel the recurring story that the national Democratic Party has "written off" the South by picking Eastern and Midwestern liberals to head the ticket in the last two presidential elections.

"By my presence I hope to demonstrate the importance I attach to Mississippi and the South," said the Democratic leader. "I say unequivocally it is not true that we do not consider this state and region vital to the party's success."

Brown said the Democratic Party realizes "we have to have a candidate who runs well in all regions of the country."

Mississippi, he said, "has a strong Democratic tradition... and we want to keep it that way." But he acknowledged that Mississippi had undergone years of neglect by the party leadership resulting in the alienation of many white Democrats.

"Now that is changing. If there ever was a groundswell to the Republican Party, it has ebbed. That is certainly evident in the overwhelming number of candidates who are running as Democrats this year in Mississippi," Brown said.

He is particularly impressed, he said, with "the number of capable, young Democratic leaders" now in state office in Mississippi. Besides Mabus, Atty. Gen. Mike Moore, Secretary of State Dick Molpus and State Treasurer Marshall Bennett, along with a number of Democratic legislators, met with Brown at breakfast at the executive mansion.

One future objective he has in Mississippi, Brown made clear, is for the state Democratic Party to field a strong candidate to challenge conservative Republican U.S. Sen. Trent Lott when he comes up for reelection in 1994.

Brown does not believe the Democrats can be counted out in mounting a campaign to unseat President Bush next year, because of Bush's vulnerability on domestic issues. "I believe the people are rethinking the 1980s and now realize Ronald Reagan and George Bush have sold them a bill of goods that it was a golden era, whereas it was a decade of greed when the rich got richer and the poor got poorer," he said.

The fact that Democratic presidential candidates are being slow to emerge this time can be beneficial to the party, Brown said. "I think the people are tired of having a 2 or 3 year presidential campaign."

It was obvious that the Mississippi Democrats who turned out to greet the bright, articulate national Democratic figure were impressed with his sincerity to make the party more sensitive to all regions and segments of the party.

"For a national chairman to come to Mississippi and spend all day, bringing with him the party chairman from Alabama shows a commitment he considers our region important," said State Treasurer Marshall Bennett.

Significantly, Bennett said, "he assured us that the next presidential campaign, organization here will not be run by some 20-year-old student from Massachusetts. It will be run by Mississippians."

And besides, Theodore Bilbo won't have to turn over in his grave.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Welcome home, 1355th—We missed you!

Dear Editor,

What a wonderful feeling to see Hancock County's National Guardsmen finally come home.

Eight months is a long time to be away from home when you are having a good time, but eight months in a place where everything is as different from Hancock County as night and day must have been hard to take.

Now that loved ones are united, I hope patience, understanding and a lot of TLC will help to make up for the hardships and loneliness they must have endured.

Also, husbands must remember their wives have not had a bed of roses while they have been gone.

If I were younger and had a loved one come home from the war, I would say to him, "Kiss me once, and kiss me twice, then kiss me once again, it's been a long, long time."

Welcome home, 1355th. We missed you.

Sincerely,
Nina S. Garcia

More sponsors, support needed for girls softball

Dear Editor,

For three years James "Snuffy" Smith has sponsored our girls softball team called "All-state Aces."

As manager, I want to thank him for his generous support. We need more businesses in our town to help build our girls softball program and follow his example. So many people and/or businesses are quick to say yes to boys' baseball and hesitant to back a girls' team.

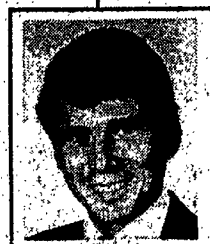

Allstate Aces won the league competition (9-12-year-olds) this season, and we are very proud of this accomplishment. Four of our girls (Kendra Wilkerson, Kate Martin, Cassie Johnson and Angela Lawson) also played on the 11-12-year-olds All-Star team. These girls and 10 others helped to win the state tournament in Saucier and then went on to place third in the sectional tournament in Baker, La.

All of those involved in the girls softball program can tell you that it is beneficial and important to the growth of our youth.

Mark your calendar for next season (March '92) and consider sponsoring a team.

Respectfully,
Sandra Gray

and Bay St. Louis All-Stars

IN CONGRESS

By Rep. Gene Taylor

America first

In Washington, there are 435 U.S. House members and 100 Senators, coming from vastly different parts of the country. They represent a wide range of opinions and what are the greatest challenges facing our nation today.

Some lawmakers see their jobs as champions of foreign aid, such as providing Most Favored Nation Status to China. The result is that China pays lower tariffs on its products coming into this nation.

I recently voted against Most Favored Nation Trading Status with China. I am adamantly opposed to the practice of allowing foreign countries a free ride on imports entering this country while stiff tariffs are levied upon American exports to those same countries.

The reason for this way of thinking is that my heart and my constituents tell me that my job is to look after the interest of this great nation.

Thanks to the fine people of the Fifth District, I am more aware now than I ever before was of the problems plaguing both our nation and South Mississippi.

I have received a wealth of information from the thousands of people who took the time to answer the questionnaire mailed to them earlier this year to let me know what is important to them.

I purposely worded the questions so the people would have a total free hand in the answers. The overwhelming majority listed their major concerns as solving problems here at home. I believe that our efforts to see that America remain as the World's greatest nation begin by looking inside our borders instead of looking out.

Although I have not received all the responses, so far the biggest concern tallied is the deficit. I believe we cannot expect government to function within its means if its individual members don't. In 1990 alone, the government spent $300 billion more than it collected in taxes.

It paid $180 billion in interest payments on the national debt. That's $500 million a day in interest payments on the debt that will not educate one child, cure one disease, or pave one inch of highway.

Secondly, many of the respondents listed drugs and crime as a major concern. I agree. It is more important to police our streets and solve our drug problem. Unless our lawmakers become more attuned to the problems facing us here at home, we will continue to see an increase in violent crime.

The countries that have sure and swift justice do not have the crime problems that we now face in America. Their system serves as deterrent to crime. Our criminals know that we do not have adequate prison space, so criminals are being released early to make room for the latest offenders.

The facts are plain; our criminals are just not intimidated by our "revolving door" criminal justice system. I feel that in order to stop violent crime in America, harsh punishment must be administered surely and swiftly to deter future offense.

And finally, we need to continue to provide opportunity through education. Our country's educational system will only fall farther behind the Japanese, Germans and many other industrialized nations, unless education becomes a top priority. For the past decade, the federal government has tried to decrease its commitment to education, while the states have been moving ahead.

We are quickly approaching the next century. I truly believe we must take these bold new steps toward improving what we have here at home if we are to compete in the global arena of the future.

Thanks To You It Works...For All Of Us

Johnson vies for District 5 seat

Danny N. Johnson, 34, has added his name to the list of candidates vying for the position of District 5 supervisor.

Johnson is a lifelong resident of Hancock County and presently resides in Bay St. Louis. He attended Jeff Davis Community College and is now pursuing a degree in business administration. To further his education, he also attended seminars and schools in business and management operations.

He was employed for 7 1/2 years by the City of Bay St. Louis, where his responsibilities included road maintenance, construction and drainage, parks and recreational areas.

As public works superintendent, his job involved the planning and administering of budgets and personnel management for several departments.

In the past Johnson has been employed by the Tandy Corporation, where he was responsible for marketing as well as finance and personnel management.

He currently works for Verbatim Communications in marketing.

"With my work experience and background in many different types of operations relating to finances, construction, personnel management and marketing, I feel competent to serve the district effectively.

"I'm old enough to have obtained the organizational skills needed for such an important and trusted position, but young enough to serve enthusiastically in order to strive for more progressive and much-needed changes in our growing area."

Johnson's personal goals include special emphasis on road conditions and drainage, and making sure all departments are budgeted sufficiently to meet their needs.

Stiglet bids for re-election as Hancock County coroner

Norma C. Stiglet has announced her candidacy for re-election as Hancock County coroner.

She is the wife of the late Harold J. Stiglet, who served as coroner for 6 1/2 years. She has more than seven years of experience in the coroner's office, six as assistant to her late husband and 1 1/2 as coroner.

Stiglet is a certified coroner/county medical examiner investigator, having completed all necessary state training as required by Mississippi law. She has completed courses covering crime scene investigation, AIDS, firearms evidence; forensic anthropology; serology, toxicology and odontology.

She has attended numerous training seminars, including the Southern Institute of Forensic Science anthropology seminar; motor vehicle/fatality seminar; several death investigation seminars; basic medicolegal death investigation; and the Mississippi Law Enforcement Training Academy.

Stiglet's on-the-job experience includes more than 185 death investigations involving fatalities, suicides, murder, drowning, fire and natural causes as well as involvement in the investigation of more than 400 cases under her husband.

She has attended more than 125 hours of autopsy observation, which is very important in her position.

Stiglet graduated from St. Joseph Academy in Bay St. Louis and was a longtime branch manager at Peoples Federal's Waveland office. She also has more than 14 years of part-time and full-time experience in the funeral home field.

She is a member of the Mississippi Coroners Association and the Hancock County Lawmen's Association, of which she is a board member.

Stiglet has six children: Charlotte Chapman, Charlene

Rutledge, Cindy Stiglet, Harold Stiglet Jr., John A. Stiglet and Connie Favre. She also has five grandchildren.

She said her on-the-job experience and training, banking and funeral home experience have placed her in contact with people from all walks of life.

"I feel I am qualified to understand the needs of the people and how to assist them with compassion, dignity and knowledge at their time of need. I have gained knowledge in this by enlisting the help of local clergy in assisting people when a death occurs.

"I will continue to upgrade the coroner's office by keeping abreast of new techniques and methods through courses offered in forensic and death investigations and continue to serve the people of Hancock County as I have in the past with dedication, knowledge and understanding."

Caulkins enters District 5 race

Diamondhead resident John C. Caulkins, 61, has announced his candidacy for the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, District 5.

The retired educator is a native of Crystal Lake, Illinois. He is the owner of John C. Caulkins Ltd., a business specializing in the marketing and sale of golf-related equipment.

He is a graduate of Wichita State University in Kansas and was a second lieutenant in the U. S. Airborne Infantry in Korea.

Caulkins views the position of supervisor as one of public service.

"If elected, I intend to use most of the salary to help needy organizations and projects within the community. The exact recipients will be selected with the assistance of various groups—churches, schools, police and fire departments," he said.

Citing the increasing costs of running a political campaign, Caulkins said, "I would like to run for office without spending any money. I have never understood why people have to raise a lot of money to be elected to an office serving our area.

"Government should serve the people, not vice versa."

The candidate resides in Diamondhead with his wife, Carol Ann, an employee of Hancock Bank. They have two sons, John Jr., 26, and David, 21.

Education: Graduate of Bay High School, Bay St. Louis. 1 year at William Carey.

Member of First Southern Baptist Church: Pearlington.

Past Occupation: Owner of Reynolds Grocery Store. Salesman for Life of Georgia Insurance. School district employee.

Current Occupation: Bus driver for Hancock County school district. Employee of Young's Restaurant: Slidell.

Platform: Opposes testing of Solid Rocket Fuel at Stennis Space Center. "I am 100 percent against anything that endangers or threatens the quality of life for our people."

FOR: Attracting new industries to area. "I will work with my fellow supervisors to bring new business to the Hancock County area and do so best to make sure those businesses hire local workers first.

FOR: Limited police presence at Hancock High. "As a bus driver I can see the need for traffic control at Hancock High. I want to work with the county sheriff and the Superintendent of Education to have a deputy in place at Hancock High in the morning and evening to ensure the safety of our children to and from school."

FOR: Upgrading sanitation facilities. "Dumping hours at the Pearlington station and the county barn need to be expanded. They need to open earlier and close later to take advantage of daylight savings time. The Leetown dumping station is an eyesore. It needs to be regulated, maintained and manned. Leetown is a beautiful area and deserves better.

FOR: Better road and ditch maintenance. "I ride these roads on my bus route and I know what it is to come to a stop sign and have your vision blocked by overgrown brush. Sometimes it's private residences that are responsible but this problem needs to be addressed. Limbs overhead are a big problem, too."

FOR: More and better maintenance. "If you're going to have better roads and cleaner ditches you need better equipment. As a resident of Pearlington I never see road equipment, hardly ever. It must either be in the shop all the time or it is being used somewhere else. But traveling to Leetown and other areas I'm told they don't see the equipment either."

FOR: A full-time, caring supervisor. "If elected I will hold no other job except that of county supervisor. I'll be available full time for the people of my district."

AGAINST: Tax increases. "I'm against tax increases because I know how hard it is on low-income people to pay the taxes we already have."

FOR: Honest government. "I believe government can and should be run fairly for all people."

FOR: Improvement of Unit System. "I think the Unit System can be made to operate more efficiently and better meet the needs of the people. It's the system we voted for but it hasn't worked for us as well as it could. Personally, I voted against the measure but it's the system we have now and we need to make the best of it."

FOR: "Doing my best. That's my only promise, to do my best in every phase of the job I'm elected to do."

Mauffray announces bid for Hancock County coroner

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the corrected version of an announcement that was published in the Sunday edition of The Sea Coast Echo.

James Donald Mauffray of Bay St. Louis has announced his candidacy for coroner of Hancock County.

Mauffray, who is retired, was a medical technician with the rank of T/4 Sergeant in the Army during World War II. He routinely had duty in the emergency room where he attended many accident, stabbing, burning, wreck, drowning, shooting, etc., victims, while stationed in Germany. He administered blood plasma, I.V.'s, oxygen, and did some suturing while on C.Q. (Charge of Quarters).

In addition to his service in the Army Medics, Mauffray also worked for a total of seven years in both Gulfport and Biloxi VA Hospitals, where he again witnessed many deaths while employed as psychiatric nursing assistant and a medical nursing assistant.

Mauffray also was office manager/relief administrator for five years at Hancock General Hospital.

Other work experience includes teaching school under the Government Systematic Training and Rehabilitation (STAR) Program at the Old Dedeaux School in North Hancock County. The students were 16-60 year-old dropouts. Subjects taught were old and new math, phonics, English, reading, writing, personal hygiene, etc. Many students went on to attend their GED diplomas.

Mauffray is the 11th of 12 children of the late Claude D. and Bessie Garriga Mauffray of the Fenton Community. His living brothers and sister are Wilson Mauffray of Wiggins, Wayne Mauffray of Long Beach, and Conrad Mauffray and Mrs. Edith Thibeaux of Bay St.

Louis. His deceased siblings are Ulman, John C. (Peck) and Woodrow Mauffray, also Mrs. Verdie Brumfield and Mrs. Gloria Horlock.

He is married to the former Charlotte Fletcher Nelson of Warrenton, Va. who is retired director of nursing at Hancock General Hospital. They have two sons, one daughter, and nine grandchildren.

A graduate of St. Henry's College in Belleville, Ill., Mauffray studied three years for the priesthood with the Oblates of Mary Immaculate, between his employment at the two VA hospitals.

Mauffray is commander of Theodore S. Price Post 3253 of the Veterans of Foreign Wars; service officer of American Legion Post 77 of Waveland; past president of the AARP of Hancock County; past chaplain of the VFW Posts of both Bay St. Louis and Kiln; and member of Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church, where he serves as usher, and member of Senior Citizens of Waveland Inc. (SCOWI).

Donald Mauffray

Mauffray states, considering his past experiences in the medical field, emergency medical, psychiatric and administrative, he is well-qualified and capable of serving as coroner of Hancock County.

Ladner seeks re-election as District 5 supervisor

Mike Ladner

Michael (Mike) Ladner, incumbent District 5 supervisor, has announced his candidacy for re-election. Ladner, a Democrat residing in Bay St. Louis, will run for a second term.

The candidate has a business and administration background, and more than 35 years experience in public service. He retired from the U.S. Air Force after 20 years of military service.

After operating a private business, Ladner accepted the position of Hancock County Veterans Service Officer, which he held for 7½ years until his retirement in 1986.

Ladner is a native of Kiln and has served Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 6285 as post commander and post veterans service officer. He held a variety of state and national VFW offices.

He is a member of Disabled American Veterans, American Legion, Knights of Columbus, Non-commissioned Officers Association and board of directors of the Hancock County Chapter American Heart Association. He is a past member of the Governor's Manpower Council.

As supervisor, Ladner has served as a representative to the Waveland Regional Wastewater Management Board.

"My business and administrative background is appropriate to the needs of a modern Mississippi county," Ladner stated. "Under the unit system, the job of supervisor has changed as we have become more involved in policymaking than in the day-to-day operations of the county, and we deal with new types of problems."

Among the accomplishments Ladner is particularly proud of are the completion of the popular walking track on US-90 and the successful marketing of the old Hancock General Hospital building, now a personal care home.

"County government has grown into big business and requires a full-time supervisor. I will continue to work to serve my constituents and all the people in Hancock County."

"Economic development has been an important force for the continued growth of the county. Our population has increased 31 percent in just eight years. "We enjoy the lowest unemployment rate in the state of Mississippi, along with being one of the fastest growing counties. All of this takes good leadership."

"I am proud to be a part of this, and have worked long hours to help accomplish what has been done so far. I want to continue working toward our goals for Hancock County in my second term."

BURGLARY OF A DWELLING

Investigator David Parker with the Bay St. Louis Police Department reported the Monday arrest of a Bay St. Louis man on a burglary charge.

Parker said Steve Laneaux, 34, of 651 Keller Street, was arrested and charged with burglary of a dwelling after Arthur Farve of 121 State Street reported that his house was broken into early Sunday morning.

No forced entry was found, Parker said, but a weed trimmer and $300 in cash were reported missing.

Laneaux has been released on a $5,000 bond. Parker said the case is under investigation and another arrest is expected.

GRAND LARCENY

A Clinton man was arrested Monday and charged with grand larceny, according to Bay St. Louis Police Investigator David Parker.

Parker said Edison Milton Watson, 22, was charged with grand larceny after David Winslow of 353 State Street reported that Watson took a 1979 Chevrolet Camaro from Winslow's yard without his permission.

Watson was also charged at his arrest with DUI and driving on a suspended license. He is in the Hancock County jail under $6,500 bond, Parker added.

Officer Tom Burleson is in charge of the investigation.

RECOVERY OF A STOLEN VEHICLE

Bay St. Louis Police Investigator David Parker reported the arrest of a Montana resident for the alleged theft of a vehicle from Long Beach.

Parker said Jeffrey Blake Aune, 27, of Three Forks, Montana, was arrested around 12:54 a.m. Wednesday after Bay St. Louis authorities received a call from the Long Beach Police Department at 12:36 a.m. Long Beach authorities said a 1984 tan Dodge Omni had been reported stolen and alerted Bay St. Louis officers to watch for it.

According to Parker, Officer Shane Corr spotted the vehicle eastbound on Hwy. 90, stopped it and arrested Aune. Assisting Corr were officers Jerry Beauguez, Jeff Hair and Robert Lee.

Parker said Long Beach law officials have taken Aune into custody.

ernment and profits from the thrift store.

Daspt said, the Waveland chapter has helped as many as 350 people in one day.

The Society helps those in need by paying delinquent phone and electric bills, rent, gas costs, groceries, and transportation for stranded visitors, just to name a few.

Braselman said "Just the other day a young woman with three children was sitting over by the cinema in the parking lot with no money or place to go."

"Jay (Fleuriet, the Society's president) saw her and stopped. We have her sheltered temporarily."

The Society offers emergency financial assistance along with consulting for more prolonged assistance through government agencies.

While Braselman sat in the Ladner Street building, which has housed the Society for the past three months, the phone rang.

She answered and immediately the tone of her voice changed to one of concern.

A woman was in need of money to pay a delinquent electric bill or else her lights would be turned off by 10 a.m. the next morning.

Braselman called the electric company and spoke with a contact familiar with the Society's services.

It was obvious that a group such as St. Vincent de Paul must have means of identifying people truly in need.

Braselman said records are kept on those who have been helped along with verification of the need and home visits.

Home visits are how the Society finds a great many of the people they help.

"I saw a woman with some small children cooking in front of a trailer yesterday, on a grill over an open hole," Braselman described.

"I was on my way to visit my son in Shoreline Park when I saw her."

"I didn't stop then but I will go back and see if we can help her."

Braselman believes Hancock County has a great many people who are living in below standard conditions.

She spoke of people without water and electricity.

She said she has seen people living in buses and cars.

She described families living in dirt and poverty that is somehow unbelievable in this day and time and place.

Braselman said the number of people they have helped proves the need for a society like St. Vincent de Paul's.

The location of the Society and its thrift shop is extremely important for access by the poor, Braselman stated.

Braselman expressed delight to know that they would be moving back to a Coleman Avenue location.

She firmly believes the location is a convenience to many people in the community who patronize the thrift store for back to school apparel.

She asked, "Where else can you get a pair of pants for a dollar and a shirt for fifty-cents?"

"Charlie Johnson has allowed us to use this (Ladner Street) building since we vacated the Civic Center on May 1."

"He (Johnson) was very good to us asking that we only pay for our utilities."

"It is just that here no one knows where we are."

In walked a woman with her son and granddaughter.

Braselman and the woman discussed an ongoing search for an electric stove.

The woman spoke of the St. Vincent de Paul Society with much gratitude saying they provided help to members of her family in the past during times of great need.

Some of the clothing in the Ladner Street building was packed in boxes for next week's intended move.

The child looked through several pieces of clothing, holding up a dress much too large for her small frame.

Braselman said the new rooms will be an improvement from the old Civic Center address.

"It will be easier for our older people to enter since we are on the ground floor, and the rooms have central air and heat."

Braselman said Waveland's Mayor Stella Frlot pulled some men from other city jobs to complete the rooms for the Society post haste.

She said the mayor spent a half hour walking through the rooms with society members to insure the renovations were agreeable with their needs.

"She has been considerate and trying to make us happy in every way."

The City of Waveland is providing the rooms for the St. Vincent de Paul Society at no cost, Braselman stated, "But, of course, we pay our own utilities."

On Coleman Avenue, two workers were finishing some work to the walls in the largest room, which is designated for the thrift store.

One of the carpenters said they should have both rooms finished by Friday.

Braselman was pleased with the two empty-unpainted areas as she glided through the space visualizing where everything would be placed.

"After we get everything moved," she commented, "then, we'll be uptown."

Taking it to the streets

Local ministry hits the road for God

BY TRACI BONNEY

Some local Christians are taking God's words to the streets.

The Doves' Nest Christian Fellowship, headed by a local minister with six years of experience who prefers to be called by his code name "Streetman," is a non-denominational evangelistic outreach ministry geared toward uplifting Christians and taking the gospel to non-Christians.

Kim McClelland, publicity director for the ministry, said the outreach has been in the planning for more than two years.

"We recruit and train street people to reach other street people with God's Word. Street people can understand other street people, can know where they're coming from, better than people who aren't from the streets."

McClelland said the street ministry, which is expected to operate all along the Coast as a "floating coffeehouse," focuses on reaching people with the message of salvation through Jesus, building up their self-esteem and helping them get their lives back on track.

"Using a heavily music-oriented approach to reach people, the ministry teaches them the basic foundations of biblical Christianity and filters the people into churches close to where they live."

"Ninety-eight percent of our ministry is follow-up work," she commented.

The ministry is not limited to hitting the streets, but is working on several projects for both youth and adults. One of these is the Doves' Nest Youth Night, which will offer live entertainment and a place for young people to meet on a weekly basis Tuesdays from 7 to 9 p.m.

A Christian coffeehouse with live entertainment will open September 19 in the Doves' Nest building on Auderer Blvd. in Waveland (next to National grocery store and LaFrance Brothers garage).

Church services are offered Thursdays at 7 p.m. and Sunday mornings at 10:45 a.m. The Sunday morning service is a time of preparation for the Sunday afternoon services, which are conducted in local parks and on the streets.

The ministry plans its first park crusade, complete with music, August 25.

To fund the ministry, Doves' Nest is holding periodic po-boy sales and runs a flea market at the Doves' Nest building Thursdays through Saturdays. McClelland said the flea market still has booth spaces available.

She added that Doves' Nest Ministry needs bands, singers and other music ministers, street ministers and program sponsors.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire Caire

The watermelon, long a favorite and healthful delicacy, is known by various names in various languages, and dates back to ancient times in Egypt, depicted in paintings during the time of the builders of the great pyramids.

Watermelon seeds were brought to our shores by explorers from the Old World, who gave watermelon seeds to the Indians! And, when the settlers found their way into our part of the new country, then known as the Louisiana Purchase territory, they found the Indians growing watermelons from the seeds which other tribes had given to them.

Watermelons are good whatever way you cut them, whether well chilled and cut and served outdoors on a newspaper-covered table, or cut into chunks or balls, or mixed with other fruit in salads, or fruit cups, or in a number of other ways.

Watermelon balls are tasty in fruit cups or salads or speared on picks and served in a glass of orange juice or lemonade, for example. And, an old Southern favorite on these blistering-hot midsummer days is:

WATERMELON ICE
Half of a watermelon
4 oranges, chopped, with their juice
2 lemons, chopped, with their juice
1 egg white
1 cup sugar
Scoop out all that sweet, rosy-pink watermelon pulp, extracting the juice by putting the pulp into a cloth bag and squeezing (the old process of years' standing) or in blender or food processor or whatever.
To the watermelon juice, add the chopped oranges and lemons (skin removed, of course) with their juice, along with the sugar. Stir and freeze, adding the beaten egg white and stirring together again when the mixture is slightly frozen.

Garnish with seedless grapes and fresh mint, if you have any around the place. And, for a tasty finale to a light summer supper, here's:

WATERMELON CUP
2 cups diced watermelon
1 cup sherry
Granulated sugar, as needed
Sprinkle sugar, as you like, over the watermelon pieces, pour the sherry over, and refrigerate for an hour or so, increasing quantities as needed.

Kids Fishing Rodeo set for Saturday

BY ELLIS CUEVAS

The seventh Gulf Coast Sportsman's Club Kids Fishing Rodeo is scheduled for Saturday, from 6 a.m. until 5 p.m. The rodeo will be open to boys and girls ages 13 and under, according to Shorty Karl, rodeo chairman and club vice-president.

The rodeo headquarters will be at the American Legion Memorial Pier, Beach Boulevard and Washington Street, Bay St. Louis.

Registration is free and forms will be available at the rodeo headquarters until 2 p.m. on Saturday.

In the freshwater division, prizes will be awarded for the largest green trout (bass) and perch.

Prizes will be awarded in the saltwater division for the largest speckled trout, redfish, croaker, white trout, flounder, ground mullet and largest fish.

"The rodeo's officials will not be responsible for undersized fish," Sam Perniciaro, Jr., club president warned.

"No undersized fish will be accepted, and parents are urged to have their children comply with state and federal regulations (on speckled trout and redfish)," Perniciaro added.

Karl emphasized no catfish or stingrays will be accepted. "This is for the safety of the children participating," Karl said.

There will also be a special crab division for ages six and under.

All fish must be caught by the participants on the day of the rodeo in any waters in the area from piers, shore line, boats or wading.

Sportsman's Club members will handle the scales and the weighmaster's decisions are final.

Each participant will also receive a free hot dog and Coke, Perniciaro said.

Trophies will be given for first, second, and third place in each category.

Scales will close at 5 p.m. While the winners are announced in each category, drawings will be held for a large number of special prizes.

"Many of the prizes for the rodeo is being donated to the Sportsman's Club by local merchants.

BACK TO NATURE

Vacation in Southwest U.S. yields bounty for birdwatchers

Special to the Echo
By LYDIA SCHULTZ
I had a vacation! I and three of my birding buddies drove across Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico to arrive at one of the hottest birding areas of the United States, southeastern Arizona. The desert has magic, and I had completely forgotten how it can tug at my heart. I'd forgotten how you can drive two or three miles and rapidly change from one type of trees and plants to another. The habitats change so rapidly with the increase of elevation. It is ever so subtle, yet ever so major to the types of animals and birds that live in the sand and plants.

For over six years now I have sold field guides that map each of the spots we were actually visiting. Each of these well-birded areas draws thousands of people annually. I'd heard the stories a dozen times about Madera Canyon and the Santa Rita Lodge that is nestled deep in the Santa Rita Mountain Range.

Oh, yes, I'd heard the stories about how the Magnificent Hummingbird is right outside your window, battling with the Broad-billed and Black-chinned hummers.

And then there is Ramsey Canyon Preserve which is situated in a narrow gorge on the eastern slope of the Huachuca Mountains. It is managed by the ever-capable Nature Conservancy and commonly known as Mile Hi.

Yeah, I'd heard about it time and time again. My list of "target" hummers (those I expected to see on the trip) was real long, but to be quite honest, I never truly expected to see them all. When we drove up, there was no room to park. It's extremely limited to preserve the area from onslaughts of naturalists overrunning the delicate ecology. So, my considerate travel mates left me, since I'm the hummingbird addict. Of course my statement, "I'm not leaving!" may have influenced their generosity.

Two minutes later I was viewing a Berylline Hummingbird! I recognized it as it is the western counterpart of the Buff-bellied Hummer I'd become accustomed to in my yard. As I was watching it, a Broad-tailed Hummer whizzed by with "that noise" I'd been told about. There it was, in front of my face, just as beautiful as the hundreds of pictures I'd seen.

Next, two other birders from California and Oregon informed me of the White-eared Hummingbird that had been on a feeder a couple hundred feet down the road. Now, hey, that's a very hard bird to get.

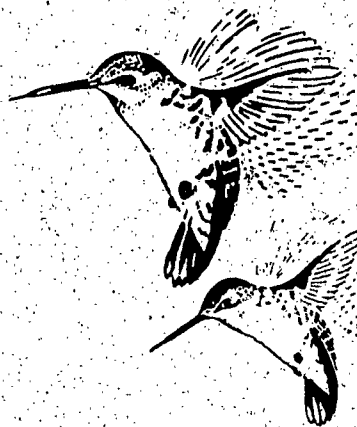

But 15 minutes later, it was in my binoculars, red bill shining, blue and green washing its body in brilliance only as hummers' colors can shine.

By the time I left Mile Hi I'd seen eight species of hummingbirds. As far as I was concerned, any other birds and birding was lagniappe!

The whole trip was spent hiking up mountains, gorges, washes and then walking. It was a naturalist's delight.

At the Patagonia-Sonoita Creek Sanctuary, another

Nature Conservancy preserve, we got to sit and see another extremely rare hummingbird, the Violet-crowned Hummingbird. There is no way to describe the beauty of this bird. Milk white breast, violet crown, bright red bill with dark gray back. The three of his species were battling Broad-billeds, Magnificent, Blue-throats and Black-chinned.

I didn't want to leave, but the push was on for birds other than hummingbirds.

At each of the three mountain ranges we were greeted on hikes by Elegant Trogons, a highly sought bird. We could hear their calls, which make you feel that you're in the deep, dark jungles of Africa. The more elusive Eared Trogon was the first bird we saw at Cave Creek Canyon in the Chiricahua Mountains.

To see a Blue-throated Hummingbird nesting on the light above our door was one of our thrills for the trip. But the thrills came too fast and too furious.

Pick my ten favorite birds? Are you kidding? Was one the Red-faced Warbler for which we had to hike one and a half hours up a mountain? I think the work put in for a bird is often commensurate with the pleasure of seeing it. Definitely a highlight!

Was it the tiny Elf Owl that sat in its well-publicized home in the light pole of Santa Rita Lodge and watched us unload our car? We didn't work hard for it, but it was certainly cute. "Cute" is not scientific enough for some birders, but it is apropos for the Elf Owl.

As we wound through each of the mountain ranges, I was struck by the delicate desert. It looked so harsh, but delicate is a much better word.

The last stop before heading home was the Desert Museum in Tucson, surrounded by saguaro cacti. I was in heaven!

To see a Gila Woodpecker, finally, eating the fruit on the giant saguaros was exactly what I'd wanted.

Cactus wrens were everywhere, just like the pictures, entering nests built among the thorns as only they can do.

Yep, it was a good trip. Now we can come home and look for Ruby-throated Hummingbirds to start their awesome migration antics. We can also look for other birds to migrate through our back yards. Or we can get out and go look for others in other habitats.

It all goes according to clock work. Each species is fairly dependable. It's up to us to decide if we want to search for them or not, far or near.

Good birding!

Members of the National Guard's 1355th Service and Supply Unit returned home to find an emotional welcome from enthusiastic relatives and friends in Bay St. Louis Saturday afternoon. Crowds gathered at the foot of the Bay Bridge and along the bus route to the National Guard Armory, where family members waited for long overdue hugs and kisses. Photographs, clockwise from upper right, Morvan Washington waves an American flag from one of the busses carrying the troops from Fort Rucker, Ala.; finding their loved ones in the crowd are Richard Branham, Jewel (Buddy) Bourne III and Chanda Ray; the unit gathers for a group photo before being released; Roderick Robertson heads for home with his family; Michael R. Ladner and his wife, Sandra; and a warm welcome from a veteran. A parade and dinner for the returning troops are planned by several veterans organizations Aug. 10 in Waveland.

FISHIN' Y'ALL

By Jim Maness

Undersize speck ordinance under review; Pier fishermen snag sharks, catfish

It's time to go fishin' y'all. I heard tell that some people claim that if you eat the fish that you catch that you are not a "true sportsman." These "some people" must be from a foreign country and eat only quiche.

The majority of the saltwater fishermen on the Coast area go after specks and reds, find them very good to eat, and would rather fight than switch.

"Catch and Release" has been shown to be a very good conservation program for freshwater "huge-mouth bass." Big time, many, a lot of, questions can be raised as to the wisdom of a so-called conservation measure that destroys 40 percent of the speckled trout caught.

measure that destroys almost half of what it is trying to protect is not a conservation practice by any stretch of the imagination.

The recommended method to handle a speck is to grab him by the lip, like you do with huge-mouth bass. Our problem is specks don't have huge mouths with no teeth and big lips like bass. Specks do have some very long and sharp front teeth. When those teeth close upon your finger they tend to make red stuff come out of the new

The cease and desist enforcement order is before the attorney general, secretary of state and the governor. I will have word on this very shortly.

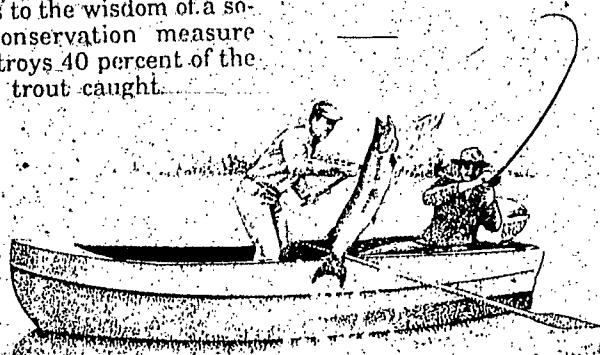

The Louisiana House of Representatives passed House Bill 498, which will remove all size limits on speckled trout in Louisiana. Even though this bill is not the law yet, maybe their biologists know something.

Surf fishermen beware. Those floating bowls of jelly with the strings hanging off of them are back. You know what they are. (They call them the 'eeeyow' things). The well-dressed surf fisherman will need long pants and shoes with socks during the next few months, or else he can practice saying "eeeyowow."

Humongous (really big), toothy-mouth fish are being caught off of the Ladner and the American Legion Piers. "JAWS" I talked to two Jaws catchers this week, Steve Parker and Lenny Neaice.

Steve claimed he caught a 3-foot long shark on the American Legion pier using a whole croaker about four inches long. He also claimed that he saw a person catch a 35-pound gaff Top Catfish on the same pier. Lenny said he caught six sharks about 3 to 4 feet each on the Ladner pier. Both were using 80-pound test line with 120-pound steel leaders. Both used the same bait—small croakers.

The best time is at night or after dark whichever you prefer.

The Green Men with the blue lights say that 40 percent of the specks that are caught and released, die. Sixty percent live when they are handled with extreme care and then released. Some folks think that as many as 90 percent of the specks caught and released die.

It is an awful crime to waste so many fish and claim it to be a conservation practice. Any holes in your finger. I find that my fingers work better if they don't have holes in them.

A petition signed by some 1,200 people was presented to the Bureau of Fisheries, Wildlife and Parks in Jackson last week. The petition called for a rehearing on Ordinance No. 7,008. The petition also called for BMR to continue to allow you to catch five undersize specks. The rehearing was granted. I will tell you the date as soon as it is known.

Government offers free info on auctions

The Defense Reutilization and Marketing Service has installed an 800 number to give free information about U.S. government surplus property sales. The number is 1-800-222-DRMS.

Part of the Department of Defense, DRMS is the organization responsible for selling surplus DOD property. DRMS conducts sales in most states and almost 20 foreign countries, selling items ranging from office supplies and household furniture to one-of-a-kind military items.

Items with potential military use are, in most cases, required to be "demilitarized" and are sold as scrap material. However, thousands of other items are sold fully useable.

DRMS conducts both national sales that tend to attract larger commercial buyers and local sales which attract small business and individuals.

Sale catalogs are sent to people who have registered to be on the "DRMS bidders" list. Both registration and catalogs are free.

For years, DRMS has warned the public about a few questionable businesses that sell "secrets" of buying surplus military property.

Often using magazine and newspaper ads, they lead customers on with suggestions of $19.95 jeeps and $10 limousines.

Modern variants use 800 phone numbers and, more recently, 900 numbers.

A 900 number has been reported that charges almost $100 to callers. What people get for their money is frequently nothing more than the address or phone number of DRMS.

The problem is, the public is entitled to information about government surplus sales at no charge. DRMS' new toll-free number is intended to help get the word out.

Callers hear an introductory message followed by four options: they can hear messages about national sales, local sales, the truth about surplus sales or speak to a DRMS employee. Callers may also leave their names and addresses in order to receive all materials needed to register for sales catalogs.

Keesler conducts surplus sales the second Tuesday of each month starting at 9 a.m., and they are open to the public.

The next Keesler surplus sale is August 13.

For more information about Keesler's sales call 377-5085.

Documenting news

Ellis Cuevas, Sea Coast Echo publisher and editor, shows a group of Boy Scouts samples of past newspapers. Cuevas explained to the group that as events happen a newspaper writes them down, keeping them for years to come as records. "Let's see what happened on this day," Cuevas told the boys. From left, Michael Mayo, Brennan Besancon, leader Leslie Besancon, Jonathan Oliver, leader Lisa Oliver, Perry Skrametti and Cuevas. Not pictured is Chris Blanchard. She worked in the operating room as a central supply officer. Operating room supervisor Virginia Kenny, right, presents Butsch with a plaque.

Hancock Holding reports earnings

For the six months ended June 30, 1991, Hancock Holding Company reported net income of $5.2 million, compared to $3.8 million for the same period in 1990. Earnings per share were $1.92 in 1991, compared to $1.39 for the same period in 1990.

Assets at June 30, 1991 increased 36 percent to $1.465 billion compared with the same date in 1990 and 4.1 percent compared to December 31, 1990.

The acquisitions of the Metropolitan National Bank on June 4, 1990 and the American Bank in Baton Rouge, La. on Aug. 2, 1990 are reflected in and are partially responsible for these increases in earnings and deposits.

In June of 1991, Hancock Holding Company Stock was listed on the NASDAQ National Market System and this has resulted in increased trading activity.

"Do you worry about the high cost of healthcare?"

"Then you need Mobile Medic."

There's a reason thousands of Mississippi families are already members of Mobile Medic: Peace of mind.

The peace of mind that comes from knowing that, for only $42 per year, they're covered in the case of an emergency.

And, with our new expanded coverage, you're also protected in Hinds and Madison Counties. That means you're now covered on the Gulf Coast, in the Hattiesburg area, and in the Jackson area. From the Coast to the Capital.

So, if you're not a member, that's another good reason for you to join.

Emergency care: No out-of-pocket expense to members...$462 to others.

A typical bill for ambulance service and emergency treatment runs around $462.00. That's before you get your bills from the hospital, emergency room, or physician.

Your insurance or Medicare may only cover a small part of the cost. But your membership with Mobile Medic covers the entire uninsured portion of your ambulance bill. You pay absolutely nothing above your membership fee for local ground transportation.

And for an entire year, your membership covers you, your spouse, and all your unmarried children under 21 who live at home.

Mobile Medic is the leading ambulance service for Mississippi.

We handle emergency and non-emergency medical treatment for everyone in our area, including non-members.

But, while non-members pay for all treatment, supplies and ambulance service, our members pay no out-of-pocket expense above the annual $42 membership fee for local service. So, if you call us only once in ten years, your membership will have paid for itself. That's why it's smart to join now.

You must respond by July 31st.

Over 15,000 families belong to Mobile Medic. So, we invite you to renew your membership now, or enroll if you're not currently a member.

Complete and return the application below and mail today. For more information, call 868-1126 or 1-800-677-1124.

Payment of $42 membership fee entitles a member to local ground ambulance transportation at no direct cost. Ambulance service must be medically necessary, as determined by the provider, and shall include patients who are non-ambulatory or have a medical condition which requires transportation by ambulance. Ground transportation outside the provider's local service area will be provided at a discount rate. This membership permits the ambulance company to collect payment for services rendered directly from the insurer or other third party medical benefits provider at no charge to the member. The ambulance company will bill the third party directly, and at non-member rates. If a member has no medical benefits coverage for the services rendered, he/she is still entitled to the ambulance services outlined in this brochure.
